

FROSTED ICE TEAS and similar GLASSES

Many gas stations and events such as World's Fairs produced glass sets and series, some including Pitchers which were made in the frosted glass style. These were popular in the 1950's and 1960's. Usually a premium of some kind, or a food container, these are highly colorful glasses and can be found all over the United States. Some series such as Oklahoma Indians were created by well known artists like Acee Blue Eagle, and are quite desirable in their local areas.
